COUGARS WIN AT PRESTON

Tackle Placer Junior College Reserves On Saturday Afternoon

Cougar football prospects were strengthened Saturday as the county high school squad, in its first game of the year, took a 6 to 0 win over the Preston School of Industry eleven at Ione.

This coming Saturday afternoon the Cougars take on the Placer Junior College reserves at Marcus P. Bennett, Jr., Memorial Park, at 2:30 o'clock in the afternoon.

Some of the rosters who accompanied the Cougars to Ione report that the squad made a very good showing for an early-season game and that the numerous inexperienced players in the Cougar lineup did especially well in holding the Preston lads to only three first downs for the game. The Cougars made seven first downs.

The Cougar score came in the second period when Barrett went over on a reverse from the Preston five-yard line after the Cougars had hove the ball down the field from the Preston forty.

Lyle Smith, a new member of the squad this year, played the entire game at center without substitution and Barrett, one of the veterans, played the entire game at right halfback.

Nine substitutions were made by Coach L. A. Brown, giving as many as possible of the new players an opportunity to test their mettle.

Substitutions: White for Edelman; Brasher for Ahlstrom; Olmstead for Palmer; Yates for Martin; Gilmore for Boggs; Ybright for Gibbs; Singleton for Mehals; and Heatherington for Oates.

Award Denied In Meyers Death

Jury Finds For Defense In Hearing Concluded On Friday Afternoon

A jury in the Superior Court reported about 9:30 o'clock Friday night finding for the defense in the suit for $41,543 damages brought by the parents of Miss La Royce Meyers against Russell S. Van Dyck.

Trial of the matter had opened Tuesday and continued until the jury received the instructions of the court in the case at about 4:40 o'clock Friday afternoon and retired to begin deliberations.

The suit was brought by Roy and Olga Meyers who contended that the death of their daughter resulted from the negligence and carelessness of the defendant, whose car struck and fatally injured Miss Meyers on February 20, last, at Fresh Pond, while she and Russell were there as members of a winter sports party spending the day in the snow.

Attorneys Russell Harris and B. F. Van Dyke represented the defense. Attorneys Albert Sheets and Henry S. Lyon represented the plaintiff.

On the jury were Everett De Lory, Walter Johnson, W. J. Stone, James E. Fisk, Helen B. Benson, Ruth Coster, Ann Celio, Eugene B. Hollenbeck, W. E. Bowman, Grace Blake, Charles Brandon and Helen Haslam.

RED CROSS FOR TOTS EXPANDS

Junior Organization Starts Enrollment In County's Schools

The small seed planted several years ago in Mrs. Alice Golden's room at the Placerville Grammar School has taken root and this week the Junior Red Cross is enrolling boy and girl members on a county-wide basis.

Mrs. Golden's class at the grammar school has carried on membership in the Junior Red Cross for several years and as a result of the visit here last week of R. E. Gillette, of the Pacific division headquarters of the Red Cross at San Francisco, the junior organization, under the sponsorship of the adult unit, is being organized throughout the county.

Mrs. Grace Denman is chairman of junior organization, appointed by El Dorado County Red Cross chapter. At a meeting of her committee last Friday evening at Hotel Raffles, the preliminaries of expanding the organization were discussed and as an initial project the organization will start the assembling of small Christmas baskets of nuts, to be sent to Chinese orphans. This is a special project in (Continued on page 2)

A series of one-day tours through El Dorado County will be instituted Sunday, October 8, by the American Recreation and Travel Service operating from Sacramento.

This is according to an announcement received by Wallace M. Ripley, secretary of the chamber of commerce, which stated that the tours will be in Placerville for luncheon and suggested that those who take part in the tours will be interested in visiting the museum of the county historical society.

Mr. Ripley said Monday that arrangements will be made to have the museum open Sunday so that the visitors may see the relics which are displayed there.

The travel organization proposes to leave Sacramento at ten o'clock in the morning, proceeding to Placerville by way of Fair Oaks and Folsom. Following a luncheon stop here, the route leads to Coloma and thence to Auburn, with the schedule calling for return to Sacramento at six o'clock in the evening.

Mr. Creed reports that wor the entire route, the road between Sacramento and Placerville was the most antiquated they encountered. This was his eighth and probably his last trip across the country he said.

During Mr. Creed's absence, the business of the city court was attended to by Justice of the Peace T. F. Lewis who "resigned" Monday morning as city judge.

NEUTRALITY ACT DEBATE BEGUN

Sen. Pittman Opens Administration Fight On Embargo Clause

By RONALD G. VAN TINE
United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON, (UP) — Sen. Key Pittman, D., Nev., chairman of the senate foreign relations committee, declared today that the present neutrality law handicaps America in her determination to stay out of war.

Opening a momentous senate debate on neutrality law revision, the lean, drawing westerner centered his attack on provisions of the present act which permit American ships to carry any goods except arms to the warring nations. He also urged repeal of the arms embargo, which he said was not a true symbol of American neutrality.

The 800 gallery seats were filled and long queues of disappointed spectators extended down the long marble stairways to the basement of the capitol. This tremendous throng had started gathering before the capitol was opened this morning. Admission to the senate gallery was by special card. Extra police were called to keep the crowd orderly and this force was augmented by federal bureau of investigation agents who recently were detailed to the building as extra precaution.

Because of his position as chairman of the foreign relations committee, Pittman got the lead-off position in the debate which is expected to last from three to six weeks.

Primed to answer him was the "Lion of Idaho," Sen. William E. Borah, who 20 years ago helped lead another, and successful, battle against a President's foreign policy—the League of Nations fight against President Wilson.

"There was no cause for fear now that we will be drawn into the brutal and widening conflict," Pittman said, "and yet, Mr. President, we as the representatives of a peace loving, democratic people, have no right to refuse to take into consideration that such war, or a war that develops out of it, may not some day be brought to the gateway of our own country."

Teachers Are Reporting To Superintendent On Enrollment Totals

Grade school enrollment for the county will total about 1,413 pupils, it was estimated Monday by Superintendent K. W. McCoy. The enrollment at Placerville Grammar school is 344 pupils, not including kindergarten.

County School Superintendent K. W. McCoy on Monday morning revealed that a census of county school enrollment is under way and is partially complete. This constitutes the summarizing of the regular reports made by the schools of the county to the school superintendent's office on their enrollment.

The report, when finally compiled, will show the number of pupils in the various grades in each school in the county, and totals will be struck off by grades and by schools.

The report at this writing is only partially complete and among the schools missing are Buckeye, Diamond Springs, Deer Valley, Lake Valley, Nashville, Negro Hill, Oak Hill, Penobscot, Pleasant Valley, Ringgold, and Springvale.

The schools reporting show a total of about 1,117 pupils.

Dupuy in his book, "World in Arms." Point 5, through Yugoslavia is in neutral land, while Points 6 and 7 were lost by collapse of Poland's armies. ## RUSSIA TAKES BALTIC RULE

Soviet Tightens Grip On Sea; Hitler Peace Proposal Expected

United Press Foreign News Editor
Europe's belligerents, anticipating failure of the Nazi-Soviet peace ultimatum, settled down today to war with all their resources.

As the second month of hostilities got underway, a new and perhaps final bid for peace by Adolf Hitler—perhaps through Italy—was expected but Great Britain and France already had turned it down.

On the fighting fronts, every move served to intensify the determination of both sides to fight to the finish.

On the high seas, a mysterious German raider suddenly appeared in the south Atlantic and sank the 5,050-ton British merchantman Clement. The crew of 48 or 49 was believed rescued but the British Admiralty which already had warned vessels that the Nazis threatened to torpedo armed merchantmen without warning advised all ships to take precautions against the unidentified raider.

On the Baltic front, Soviet Russia moved to consolidate its hold on Estonia by "inviting" the foreign minister of Latvia (25,395 square miles and 1,950,000 population) to Moscow to discuss leasing naval and air bases to Russia. The invitation, accepted immediately, indicated that Latvia was scheduled to follow the course of the Estonian government.

Lithuania (21,489 square miles and 2,553,000) is the third Baltic state and the closest to Germany and there were hints that the Soviet spread of influence along the Baltic would soon include that government, too.

Turkey, at the opposite Russian frontier, apparently was maintaining a middle course. Although long a close ally of the Soviets, the Turks were going ahead with conclusion of an alliance with Britain and France. Thus while they are expected to specify that Turkey will not join in hostilities against Russia the Ankara government leaders seemed willing to cooperate with the Allies at the important Dardanelle Strait.

Wednesday, ten o'clock at Kelsey Hall; two o'clock at Sperinde ranch at Penobscot;

"If an embargo is necessary to keep us out of war, then let us place an embargo on all of the instruments of war and on all of the materials that enter into the manufacture of arms, ammunition, and instruments of war," Pittman said.

"I do not consider that such an embargo is necessary. I do not think it is so much the character of goods we permit to be exported, but rather the use of our American vessels in the export to belligerents of any materials declared by the belligerents to be contraband of war.

"In my opinion this is the most important legislation that has ever been proposed to congress or ever enacted into law for the purpose of keeping us out of a European war."

Stewart Says— Russo-Jap Accord Gravely Important In United States

By CHARLES F. STEWART
Central Press Columnist

THE RUSSO-JAPANESE get-together is about as much of a headache to Uncle Sam as the Anglo-Franco-German situation is. Potentially, perhaps, it's an even worse one. Conceivably Uncle Samuel can remain indefinitely on the European sidelines. But if the Japs are to have a free hand in China his toes are pretty certain to be trampled on in a fashion that neither his feelings nor his interests will make it easy for him to submit to without expressing his resentment very forcibly.

To be sure, the suspension of Russo-Japanese hostilities along the Mongolian-Manchukuoan frontier is spoken of alike in Moscow and Tokio as the result of a truce of no great consequence.

The fact remains that said hostilities are suspended. Even before their suspension Russia had begun to take such an interest in doing so on its western border that Dictator Stalin may imaginably have been anxious to get the Japanese off his hands to the eastward. Also, the truce having been arranged, it's noteworthy that the Japs immediately and emphatically intensified their campaign to conquer China. They were hampered in this campaign while their undeclared war with the Russians lasted.

The essential point, from the American angle, is that the mikado appears materially to have improved his chances of gaining complete control on the eastern Asiatic mainland, south of Siberia—and possibly he has it in the back of his head to grab that, too, later.

Bal as a Kaleidoscope
It's no secret that Tokio wants to drive Occidentals out of China proper.

The Chinese object—not necessarily because they're pro-Occidental, but because they're opposed to being gobbled by Nippon, and most Occidentals, for their own selfish reasons, likewise prefer not to have Nippon gobble them.

Consequently, when the Japs undertook to assimilate them, the Chinese had the sympathy of Americans, British, French and Russians. The Dutch and Portuguese sympathized, too, but they're too peeved to signify. For that matter, sympathy's the only thing Americans have helped the mainlanders with thus far.

Britain and France, however, have aided them with military supplies, shipped in through backdoors as Hongkong and French Indo-China. Now, though, the British and French are too busy in the west to keep these rear doors open. Furthermore, they need all their supplies for European consumption.

Russia has been of still more solid assistance to Chiang Kai-shek's Chinese government. The Russians not only have provided Chiang with fighting materials; they've waged physical war against the Japs on the Mongolian-Manchukuoan line, preventing the latter from concentrating against Chiang in a southerly direction.

Then came the Russo-German pact, relieving Stalin of any urgent worries on his west front. The conclusion seemed to be that he was thus left free to deal wholeheartedly with the Japs to the eastward, greatly to China's benefit.

Today, instead, it develops that Russia is concerned rather with the west than the east—it wants a chunk of Poland more than it wishes to dominate China.

Nice for the Japs
Hence that Russo-Japanese truce. The mikado probably can lick Chiang if he hasn't any Occidental backers.

Well, Russia at least temporarily is out of the picture. Britain and France have their hands full in Europe. It looks like quick work for the Japs in China; and if they win, out and out—goodby Occidentals in that part of Asia.

This includes Americans. The Japs have been rather nice to Americans to date, but it's a cinch that they won't be as soon as they can afford to be otherwise. Now, how will Uncle Sam like it to have his Chinese rights disregarded and to have his nationals slapped around by the Japanese, as Britons' rights and nationals have been treated lately?

The San Joaquin Valley Labor Bureau recommends 80 cents a hundred as the wage for picking cotton.

TODAY'S PROFILE

—BY UNITED PRESS

One of Scotland's greatest lawyers Lord Hugh Pittison MacMillan, is Britain's chief war-time censor with the official title of Minister of Information.

To members of the American Bar who have met Lord MacMillan he is anything but a "dour Scot." In fact, when the bar association held its convention in Cleveland a year ago he was the No. 1 attraction during the sessions. He cut capers, received reporters in his shirt sleeves, traded quips with them and posed readily and gaily for photographers.

It seemed that Lord MacMillan took great delight in upsetting the accepted idea of a British barrister. He answered his own phone in a Cleveland hotel suite, and Lady MacMillan begged interviewers to excuse the breakfast dishes on the table.

As Minister of Information, however, his broad Scottish smile probably isn't much in evidence now. He is a firm believer in deliberate action, so it is likely that there will be no hasty measures by his ministry. In praise of deliberation, Lord MacMillan once recalled:

"I remember one court case when it took a barrister 12 days just to open his case, but it really worked out quite well."

Lord MacMillan, now 66—he was born on Feb. 20, 1873—is the Baron (life peer) of Aberfeldy. His life sketch in Britain's "Who's Who," occupies nearly half a page and is studded with accomplishments.

He was graduated from Edinburgh University with first class honors, M. A., in 1893. Three years later he won his LL.B. at Glasgow University, and was admitted to the bar when 24 years old.

Honorary degrees have been showered upon him—Columbia University, St. Andrews, Birmingham, McGill, Queen's, Kingston, Manchester.

During the World War Lord MacMillan was assistant director of intelligence in the Ministry of Information, and that experience is helping him in the new cabinet post created by Sir Neville Chamberlain on Sept. 4, 1939.

STUDEBAKER DEALERS AND SERVICE MEN ATTEND PRE-VIEW SHOWING OF NEW MODELS AT SAN FRANCISCO ON FRIDAY

The Studebaker assembly plant and factory in Los Angeles began turning out new 1940 Studebaker Commanders and Presidents, Oct. 1, and assurance was given that all dealers throughout the state would have cars for display and delivery not later than Oct. 15th. The Champion announced last week is now ready for delivery.

This program was outlined last Friday before more than 400 dealers, salesmen and guests in San Francisco in conjunction with a previewing showing of the fall line of 1940 Studebaker cars, at the St. Francis Hotel. Local men in attendance were: C. S. Collins, dealer for El Dorado County; Bill Saunders, Spence Plummer and Ted Buhlert of the Placerville branch; Jim Fosse and Kenneth Collins of the Georgetown branch. Guests included Walter Drysdale, E. Ogden Hook and Mance H. Vaught.

Following a noon luncheon C. W. Whitaker, general manager of Pacific Studebaker Corporation reviewed the splendid progress made in sales in recent months during which in San Francisco and Oakland they jumped to 5th place; Alameda, 6th place, while in the Sacramento area an all-time high of 3rd place was gained. The sales records are based on competitive selling within their classification.

During this period the local dealer enjoyed a substantial increase in sales. This is particularly true since the announcement of the Champion, Studebaker's new low priced car last July.

Next on the program was the outlining plans for the coming sales year, which included a brief illustrated talk by Dana Jones, publicity representative, on Studebaker's vast advertising program, which will total upwards of a million dollars. Releases began in newspapers the latter part of September.

This was followed by the climax of the afternoon, the unveiling of the 1940 models.

More beautiful, ultra-modern in styling, perfect performance and ease of operation, the Studebaker line for 1940 presents an outstanding value in up-to-date motor cars.

THE Book Mark

By JANE VOILES

You are going to hear a lot about Robin Lampson's new book "Death Loses a Pair of Wings," the story of William Gorgas who conquered yellow fever in the Canal Zone. In an article which Mr. Lampson calls "Backstage of a Biography," he tells how he came to write the story of Dr. Gorgas. When he was doing research for his book, "Laughter Out of the Ground," a story of the Gold Rush of 1849, which was on the national best seller list for six months (1935-36), he read all the accounts he could find of journeys to California by way of the Isthmus of Panama. Yellow fever, he learned, attacked practically all parties that crossed the Isthmus. Many of the argonauts never reached their destination. Victims of yellow fever, they were buried in the American cemetery at Charges "under mounds stabbed with crude little wooden crosses."

It is a known fact that the completion of the Panama Canal was made possible by Colonel Gorgas of the Army Medical Corps. Mr. Lampson became interested in Gorgas. The library offered little information about the man—one of his books on sanitation, a short biography by his widow and Burton Hendricks, some government reports. When Mr. Lampson read the short resume of Gorgas' work in the first volume of Mark Sullivan's "Our Times," he knew that his next book had to be the story of Gorgas. Books are born just that way. The title "Death Loses a Pair of Wings" a singularly beautiful and appropriate one, came to him out of a clear sky.

Given a subject and a title, what does a writer do next? Mr. Lampson wired his publishers (Scribners). The subject and title sounded promising to them so they sent him a contract by return mail. Then began the real work. Mr. Lampson set out to read everything he could find on yellow fever and on the life of Gorgas. In two years he read 750 titles—books, pamphlets and magazine articles—and looked through 2700 issues of daily newspapers. The next step was to get in touch with the people who knew Gorgas personally. In order to do this, Mr. Lampson had letters asking for information published in many papers and magazines. Believe it or not, he received more than a thousand replies. Who says that there is no cooperation in the world? Of these letters, at least one in every five gave him some valuable bit of information or related anecdotes and incidents in the life of Gorgas—some of the letters were helpful in that they suggested that Mr. Lampson write to some friend, doctor or nurse who had been in close touch with Gorgas. All leads were followed faithfully. As you might expect, there were a few with an eye to business who demanded money for their information. One bold spirit even demanded a share of the royalties, but Mr. Lampson managed very well without his help.

When it was possible, there were interviews with those who knew Gorgas. When Dr. Victor Heiser, author of "An American Doctor's Odyssey," was in San Francisco, Mr. Lampson went to see him and he relates how Dr. Heiser sat up until almost midnight telling anecdotes about "his old friend, Gorgas." Mr. Lampson counts himself very fortunate indeed to have had the enthusiastic cooperation of Dr. Gorgas' sister, Miss Mary Gayle Gorgas, Assistant Librarian of the Amelia Gorgas Memorial Library of the University of Alabama and Dr. Gorgas' only child, Mrs. William D. Wrighton of Chevy Chase, Maryland. Both appear in the book as minor characters.

No temperamental writer jealous of prerogative, Mr. Lampson pays a tribute to his wife Margaret Fraser Lampson. Incidentally, Mrs. Lampson, under the name of Margaret Fraser has written poetry of rare beauty. If it had not been for her help, says Mr. Lampson, the writing of the book would have taken five instead of three years. As you see, "Death Loses a Pair of Wings" was not dashed off in a month's time. Facts had to be gathered, checked and re-checked. It is written in cadence, the form used for such subjects in the old days. We hope every man, woman and child in America reads "Death Loses a Pair of Wings." It is free from the blights of refection and escapism. Of necessity we must read about the human slaughter on the European battlefronts where life no longer has value. To read how one man worked to save human life is to keep us aware of something fine and exalted.

Already the ferry boat is a vanishing tradition of San Francisco Bay. "Recollections of a Tule Sailor" by John Leale, Master Mariner of San Francisco bay who was a ferry boat captain for 26 years, is an intimate document of the ferry boating era. Captain Leale relates what a ferry boat captain sees and hears from his pilot house, "what he learns about fogs, tides, commutants and the San Francisco waterfront.

Here's the No. 1 businesswoman of Gay Paree, the newest and one of the most elaborate concessions on Treasure Island. She is none other than the glamorous showgirl, she of the fan, the bubble and the peacock plume, Sally Rand. Here she's pictured as she makes out her payroll at her dressing table just before she goes out to swish and sway before the throngs who enter the good Ship Gay Paree for a whirl of nightlife at the California World's Fair.

addition to the regular work of the unit in El Dorado County and elsewhere in the nation.

According to Mr. Gillette, the Junior American Red Cross has been functioning as an organization for twenty-two years. It was an outgrowth of the organization of children during the world war days for various public services. Membership is by school rooms for which the fee (for the entire room) is fifty cents per year.

The Red Cross supplies a badge for every pupil in a member room, and a poster calendar for the room and the Junior Red Cross magazine.

The juniors members have the use of the office facilities of the American Red Cross at San Francisco, Washington and in Paris for the interchange of correspondence with junior members in other parts of the world.

The work of the junior membership, according to Mr. Gillette, is designed to fit in with the school program and permits of its members maintaining an international correspondence with children of their own age. The Junior American Red Cross takes part in work intended to assist underprivileged children in all parts of the world.

"HARDY FAMILY" ROLES ARE DOING GREAT THINGS FOR YOUNG MICKEY ROONEY, FEATURED IN MONDAY SHOW AT EMPIRE THEATRE

His role of Andy Hardy is doing things to Mickey Rooney. So declares the debonair son of Judge Hardy in the Hardy Family series, newest of which, "Andy Hardy Gets Spring Fever," closes a two-day showing tonight at the Empire.

"Every new Hardy story contains some emotion or reaction that a fellow has to study and understand. Now and then, I think, it actually changes some viewpoint or other," says the youthful star. "For instance, in the present picture I have to develop a fine case of puppy love for my pretty high school teacher. It goes deeper than any previous cases because I'm supposed now to be somewhat more advanced in romantic experience. I propose, she tries to make her refusal plainness. I find out she's already engaged and am in torment, then she, in a sensible talk, brings me to realize that boys like me aren't ready yet for the real romantic things of life. Andy Hardy has to develop an almost adult viewpoint of the matter.

"I studied and mullied over it. And finally I caught myself really developing an adult viewpoint, or at least I think I did. I am convinced playing the character has done a great deal to develop certain character traits. I talked about it to Lewis Stone for we have man to man talks in real life, away from the picture, and he tells me that absorbing details of character the actor is playing is really storing his mind with useful experience for future parts. He thinks it's a good thing."

Although Mickey has his serious moments in "Andy Hardy Gets Spring Fever," he also has many hilarious comedy moments. He writes a high school show, stars in it and helps build the scenic effects which include a "volcano" that closes the show by setting the schoolhouse on fire. There is a comical quarrel with Ann Rutherford, a farewell scene with the pretty teacher, and a talk about marriage with his father that is gropingly dramatic in its sheer humaneness.
